Interested individuals – scholars and practitioners alike – willing to provide an original (i.e.: not fitting in any of the 22 other tracks) contribution to the IIAS-Lien 2019 Conference may submit a contribution in this Open Track.

The contribution should be relevant to the Conference Theme "Effective, Accountable and Inclusive Governance". This theme reflects the emerging consensus at United Nations level as to what the concept of good governance means in the Agenda 2030 context. It also incorporates concerns regarding the adaptation of governance systems to the ongoing Fourth Industrial Revolution.

- Effective governance, where effectiveness refers to competence, sound policymaking and collaboration;
- Accountable governance, were accountability refers to integrity, transparency and independent oversight;
- Inclusive governance, where inclusiveness refers to leaving no one behind, non-discrimination, participation, subsidiarity, and intergenerational equity.

The contribution can be a paper proposal or a panel proposal.

Paper proposals indicate the theory, the empirical evidence, and preview the findings. They are limited to 500 words.

Panel proposals include a general description of the panel, identify the chairperson(s) of the panel, and contains a list of speakers, with their institutional affiliation, email, and the title of their intervention.
